A considerable number of people are now working in the REPUBLICAN voting contest. It will not be many days before hundreds will be hustling in the interest of some candidate.

The standing today indicates that somebody has been doing something. The start already made by several of the candidates leads one to believe that a lively time is in prospect for Jackson county. A person will not need to read the REPUBLICAN to find out that things are active in almost every township in the county where a candidate is located.

The organizations which have not yet started had better get a move on so as to avoid being distanced in the race. Of course there is time yet to do things, but then time soon slips away and the opportunity will be lost. There are thousands of votes to be easily obtained everywhere in the county. All it needs is someone to do the asking.

Every member of a church, lodge, or school contesting for the prize pianos should secure votes in some manner. Get a friend to subscribe for the paper. Get others who are taking the paper to cut the coupons and renew their subscription.

Have committees appointed at the next meeting. Get things to moving in your community. You would be surprised to see the activity now displayed in localities where the citizens are determined to have a piano free. HUNDREDS WILL BENEFIT.

Did you ever stop to realize what a great benefit it will be to have one of these pianos in your assembly room? In almost every village where a candidate is located the church, lodge or school is the center of the social life of the community. No wonder the people in general approve of the liberal offer of the REPUBLICAN to give away three valuable pianos absolutely free.

SYSTEM IS THE RULE.

The leader in the contest today is the Shields High School of Seymour.

Second in the race is the Crothersville Presbyterian church which jumps from seventh place to second. Third in the standing is the Brownstown Public Schools. The Jackson Township Consolidated Schools move up from ninth to fifth place in the contest. No candidate has a great lead and one can look for a great amount of see-sawing, as a few hundred votes can be easily overcome. Good, earnest, persistent field work will yield rewards in the shape of thousands of votes.

GOING AT A LIVELY CLIP.

All told the contest is going at a lively clip. Everybody's REPUBLICAN is dug up and given a whack and some diligent worker gets the votes. Every one wants these ballots and of course, the REPUBLICAN is becoming very popular with an increasing number of people.

To date the struggle has been a clean one and the friendly rivalry that exists between the candidates has aroused the interest of the entire community. The entire county is now aware that the REPUBLICAN is going to give away three beautiful, high grade pianos to the most popular and strongest organizations in the county.

CONTEST SELF SUPPORTING.

For every dollar paid for subscriptions during the contest value received is given in news of the world, nation, state, county and city. The contestants can work with a perfect belief that they are concerned in a meritorious undertaking, and can assure every person who assists them that they will get the worth of their money. At the end of the contest when the judges have verified the standing of every candidate, the three winners can faithfully say, "We were successful through our own efforts and the assistance of our friends."

ALL HAVE CONFIDENCE.

One of the pleasing features of the contest is the confidence which the contestants have in their ability to win. The workers and their supporters seem to have an abiding faith in their ultimate success. Nearly every person seen by the contest editor has words of encouragement. No one has any fears of losing. There appears to be a determination on the part of supporters that means something in the way of results.

DO IT NOW.

Because you may have an idea that the contest is going to last several weeks is no excuse for putting off the active canvass so necessary for your preferred candidate to win. All have an equal chance of winning. It's just a question of hustling and taking advantage of the opportunity which is open to every contestant.

We predict that several of the candidates lower down the line will move up a few pegs at the next standing. The numerical strength of an organization does not count for so much as the activity of the members who constitute the working force.

HOW TO GET VOTES.

Clip the voting coupons from the REPUBLICAN, fill them out and mail or bring them to this office each Tuesday and Friday, or any time for that matter.

Get your friends and fellow members to renew their subscription to the REPUBLICAN. If not taking the paper get them to start and be counted as a new subscriber. We will start their subscription at any time they desire. If taking another paper we can start the REPUBLICAN when their time is out for the other paper.

The contest editor will supply all who wish to assist some candidate with subscription receipt books to be used in soliciting.

Talk to your fellow members and get them interested. The more you talk contest the greater the interest is going to become in your neighborhood.

See that your available territory is thoroughly canvassed.

Look alive at all times; the pianos are worth having. The material advertisement which your organization will receive will be of vast benefit.

Write or call on the contest editor for information or assistance at any time.

Parsonage Improved.

The repairs on the German Lutheran parsonage are being completed. Changes have been made in the arrangement of some of the rooms and the rooms have been better lighted. The wood work has been repainted both inside and out. These with the many other changes that have been made make the residence modern and attractive. The ladies of the church were putting on the finishing touches on the interior Thursday.

Foot Ball Game.

The foot ball team of the Franklin High school arrived in the city about one o'clock and will play the team from the local high school this afternoon. The Seymour boys have been practicing pretty hard this week and expect to spring some new plays on the visitors. The game was called about 2:30 and was attended by a number of foot ball enthusiasts.

WOODMEN NEXT

Will Have Special Meeting in Two Weeks.

The Seymour Camp of Modern Woodmen is arranging for a special meeting to be held on Thanksgiving night, Thursday, November 25th. Invitations are being sent to every Modern Woodmen lodge in Jackson county to attend and it is expected that almost everyone of them will at least have a few representatives here to see Gore Team No. 3261 put on the work. A communication has already been received from Indianapolis to the effect that a delegation is coming from there. These will include some of the Seymour members or former members who are now located in Indianapolis. Visitors are also expected from Columbus and other neighboring lodges outside of the county.

Captain Carter has called a meeting of the degree team for next Monday night and they will have three or four practice drills with the floor work before Thanksgiving. The boys expect to more than keep up their past reputation as one of the best degree teams of this order in the state. The matter of a larger hall for this special meeting is being considered and if thought advisable an effort will be made to secure different quarters where a large number of visiting delegates can be better accommodated.

The greater portion of the time from eight till eleven will be taken up with the degree work with perhaps some speech making from prominent visiting delegates. The intention will be to open promptly on time that the work may be finished in time for the visitors to return home on the late trains north, south and west.

The lodge at Tampico, which was organized a few months ago, is expected to bring a delegation and perhaps some new members for the initiation work. Other lodges in the county that have new members ready for adoption are invited to bring them to this special meeting. The fact that most of the visiting delegates can reach their homes by shortly after midnight will doubtless have the effect of increasing the attendance very much.

Temperance Address.

Mrs. M. C. Carpenter has received word that Mrs. Mary A. Sibbitt, of Kansas, a prominent W. C. T. U. lecturer, will give an address in Seymour Wednesday evening at the Baptist church. Mrs. Sibbitt is recognized as one of the leading lecturers identified with the W. C. T. U. movement, and is a very pleasing speaker. The press throughout the country speaks very complimentary of her addresses and the members of the W. C. T. U. consider themselves fortunate in securing her for an address in this city. Some of the pastors have consented to adjourn the regular prayer meeting services, which are held on Wednesday evening, in order that there be no church services to conflict with the meeting at the Baptist church.

First Baptist Church.

Bible school 9:15 a. m. Divine worship 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. Subject for the morning, "A Manly Christianity." For evening, "The Pre-occupied Hearer." This meeting will be led by the pastor, and all members who are interested in the spiritual interest of the church are requested to meet with us.

First M. E. Church.

At 10:30 a. m. the pastor will preach the fourth in a series of sermons on the subject, "Experimental Religion." Dr. M. B. Hyde will preach at 7:30 p. m. Communion service at the morning hours. All other services at the usual hours. You and your friends are cordially invited to come and worship with us.

Ministers' Meeting.

The Ministerial Association of Seymour will meet in regular session next Monday at 10 a. m. in the study of the Presbyterian church. "The Preacher, the Church and the Society for the 20th Century," is the subject of the paper to be given by Rev. H. H. Allen. All ministers in Seymour and vicinity are cordially invited to be present.

Central Christian Church.

Bible school at 9:15 a. m., Christian Endeavor 6:30 p. m. Preaching at 10:30 a. m. "How to Help Each Other," "The True and the Living Way," are the subjects for discussion. Come and bring your friends and families. We will do you good for time and eternity.

USE OF PERFUMES.

Delicate Odor Obtained by Placing Open Bottle in Wardrobe.

Two thousand dollars is the modest sum spent every year for perfumery by one American woman, well known both in London and New York society, according to the New York Tribune.

"I happen to know this," says the representative of an English perfumery house, "because she gets her goods direct from us. Scores of other women, both English and American, think it necessary to spend $200 or $300 every twelve-month for scents. Ten or twenty dollars a bottle is nothing to the woman who can afford it, or the man either, for that matter, and in my opinion people are quite justified in spending money that way, if they have it. But those who haven't should try to get the same thing in a commoner bottle for $1. You see, I am perfectly frank.

"There is no doubt," proceeded the perfumery man "that perfume is more popular to-day with all classes than ever before. This is generally assumed to be a matter of vanity but it is really more a matter of poetical association. Every one knows the strange way in which the fragrance of certain flowers, wood gums and things recalls vividly the scenes and pleasures of the past. Every one has some special reminiscence that is awakened by some subtle odor. An old man told me once that whenever he smells the faint fragrance of a pansy he'd give all his gray hairs—meaning his consolidated experience—to be a boy again because his first sweetheart sent one of those flowers in a letter to him seventy-five years before.

"A good deal has been said about the vulgarity of perfume. Of course, there are vulgar perfumes. Just as there is low music or art. The real reason, I think, for the prejudice some have against perfume is that the scent bottle is made too evident. A woman of taste will not smother herself in perfume. It is not a rapid evaporation of strong scent that she delights in, but a very faint, clinging fragrance. A good way to secure that result is to leave a bottle open so that the perfumery may evaporate in your wardrobe. It takes a long time for the subtlest part of the scent to get into every fiber of the clothes, but when you wear those clothes there is no vulgarity about them. You carry a kind of fragrant presence about with you."

MISS CATHARINE WRIGHT.

The Sister of the Aviators Is the One Who Made the Calculations.

Miss Wright made the calculations and her brothers made the experiments. The three worked together. Before any demonstration was made, before her brothers had tested the machine they were building, Miss Wright knew that it was possible for man to fly. She was the first woman in the world to know it positively. She knew it because she herself had made the calculations. She was willing to stake what little money she had saved from her salary as a school teacher, along with the smaller amount her brothers had saved, upon the outcome of the device to be made according to her calculations. She staked it, and she won.

When the machine was completed and found to be a success, and it became desirable to get in touch with the nations of the world, it was Catharine Wright who brought the aeroplane to the attention of the men who would have to be dealt with. The letters which the representatives of the foreign governments received were written by this woman in the name of her brothers.

All this time Miss Wright was going daily to the schoolroom. Even their neighbors did not know she took any interest in the flying machine. They knew that it was characteristic of the Wrights to be devoted to one another. But they did not know that this patient school teacher had mastered the intricacies of the air and that she had been in correspondence with the governments, carrying on the promotion end of the flying machine.

Even after the Wright aeroplane had become famous and her brothers were demonstrating it to the world, Miss Wright continued her occupation of teaching. It was not until Orville Wright met with the accident at Fort Myer, which came near costing him his life, that she gave up her position and hastened to him. She remained until he was able to travel, took him home, nursed him to health and accompanied him on his recent trip to France.—Hampton's Magazine.

EARLY HISTORY OF DRAMA.

London Theaters, Actors and Playwrights in Seventeenth Century.

Among the first women dramatists in England were Mrs. Manley, Mrs. Aphra Behn, who was the author of eighteen plays, and Mrs. Susannah Centlivre.

The first theater to be opened after the death of Cromwell was the Cockpit theater, near Drury Lane, under the management of Rhodes, one of the colleagues of Rhodes being Thomas Betterton, an exchange says.

The next theater to be opened was the Red Bull, and the third was the Salsbury Court theater in Whitefriars.

These theaters were opened in 1660.

In the first year in the reign of Charles II, a new theater was built in Drury Lane and called the King's theater. Among the leading actors were Maj. Michael Mohun and Charles Hart. The latter had famous stage blood in his veins, being a grandson of Shakespeare's sister, Joan. He had become famous as an actor while a boy, playing girls' parts at Blackfriars and at this time was a popular lover and character player. His best roles were Othello, Alexander the Great in "The Rival Queens," and Amintors in "The Maid's Tragedy." It was here at this theater that Nell Gwyn made her first appearance on the stage. Among other famous actresses connected with this playhouse were Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Knipp and Ann and Rebecca Marshall.

The next theater was opened in 1661 in Portugal row, Lincoln Inn Fields, and bore the title of the Duke's theater, being under the patronage of the Duke of York. The lessee of this theater was Sir William D'Avenant, who, rumor said, was the son of William Shakespeare. He obtained the theater with a monopoly of the acting of nine of Shakespeare's plays, among which were "Hamlet," "King Lear," "Macbeth," "Romeo and Juliet," "The Tempest" and "Twelfth Night." Among those who composed the company playing at this house were Thomas Betterton, James Nokes, Cave Underhill and Henry Harris. The ladies included Mrs. Davenport, the beautiful Mrs. Davies and the young and talented Mrs. Saunderson, who afterward became Mrs. Betterton. D'Avenant died in 1668 at the age of 62. He ruled the Duke's theater for seven years, during which time he wrote fifteen plays and trained a company of famous actors.

NATIONALITY IN CHINA.

Ten Years' Residence for Citizenship and Twenty for Office.

A Chinese newspaper states that the law of nationality, consisting of twenty-four articles, has been decided upon, says Daily Consular and Trade Reports. By this law any person who has lived in China over ten years and is above 20 years of age, of good moral standing, being helpful to China, may be allowed to assume Chinese nationality, if asked for. Unless one has lived in China more than twenty years he will not be allowed to serve in the grand council, imperial household department, or as a military official in any position above the fourth grade, neither can he become a member of parliament nor of the provisional council. When one wishes to abandon his nationality as a Chinese he must first get the consent of the board concerned or he cannot lose his nationality. Only a person who has no official position or has not failed to pay taxes is allowed to abandon his nationality. When a Chinese woman marries a foreigner she will abandon her Chinese nationality, and when a foreign woman marries a Chinese she will become Chinese. In either assuming or abandoning nationality the wife and children will follow the husband's nationality. A woman who is married is not allowed to change her nationality alone. Women who are divorced and persons who have abandoned Chinese nationality before the laws are enforced will be treated as Chinese so long as they live in and enjoy their rights in China.

True Picture of Gotham.

"I have a new idea for a picture postal card," said a tired-looking man. "I'd make it to represent the interior of an uptown flat. There ought to be millions of them on the market. They would sell. Every day people living here are asked by out-of-town people to send them postals descriptive of New York life.

"There are hundreds of such cards for sale, but none of them gets right down to the very marrow of metropolitan conditions. It takes a flat to do that. Even persons who are perfectly familiar with the scenes represented on postals complain that they cannot recognize the places.

"But just transfer to a postal card a drawing of a New York flat and there will be no mistake as to the environment. Chuck a lot of bandboxes under the folding lounge, jam the baby's crib bang up against the buffet, hang a lot of clothes in every corner and on the walls for drapery, stack up a lot of illustrated books on the refrigerator and pile the piano high with miscellany, and there you are. Friends and acquaintances from Jersey City or Timbuctoo will exclaim at once: 'That's New York, all right!'"—Once New York Press.

Can Trust Themselves.

When asked whether Napoleon shaved himself, Talleyrand replied: "Yes. One born to be a King has some one to shave him; but they who acquire kingdoms shave themselves." Dionysius, the tyrant of Syracuse, not daring to commit himself to a barber's hands, is said to have shaved his own beard with glowing walnut shells.

A HIGH-SPIRITED HORSE.

When a bargain is to be made, it is wise for the buyer and seller to come to a frank understanding of the terms employed and the ideas they convey to each party. "You say this is a high-spirited horse?" inquired a city man of a farmer who wished to dispose of a dejected-looking steed.

"Well, yes, I call him a high-spirited boss," replied the owner, slowly. "I ain't going to tell ye any ontruths, stranger; it's on account of his being so high-spirited that my wife is willing to part with him."

"Does he kick and shy and rear?" asked the city man, eyeing the tranquil animal doubtfully.

"Oh, mercy sakes, no! He's a real unassuming boss in those ways," responded the farmer, cheerfully.

"He'll yap open his mouth now an' again, but as I tell my wife, he never bites, though he makes great pretensions. It ain't in such ways as that his spirit shows out."

"Well, what do you mean by saying he's high-spirited, then?" inquired the possible purchaser, in some confusion of mind.

"Why, if he takes a notion to chaw off'n a bush b' the roadside, fer instance, you can't prevent him, no more'n nothing. He'll stand there an' eat his fill, an' you may 'gee-up!' an' crack the whip till you're worn out."

"An' then you can't urge him none going up a hill without he'll stop stock-still, an' turn his head right round at ye."

"He likes his own ways, ye see. Sometimes he'll set right down in the road, if so be he thinks my wife is imposing on him, an' it takes considerable coaxing to get him on his feet again."

"An' he won't stand blinders on him, neither. He goes right 't' sleep in the barn, an' nothing can wake him up, he's so mad, if ye put blinders on him."

"That's what I call a high-spirited boss," concluded the farmer, surveying the beast in question with evident pride, "but my wife, she don't appreciate his disposition, an' she's willing to part with him."—Youth's Companion.

CUSTOM HOUSE DOPED.

Cause Traced to a Cocoonant Shell of Smuggled Opium.

Officers, clerks and janitors employed by the Brownsville custom house have for the last few days been suffering from a strange attack resembling the dreaded sleeping sickness, and the symptoms were becoming so accentuated that the matter was getting to be serious until this morning a sack of cocoonants addressed to a Chinaman at San Antonio, Texas, was hauled out into the corral of the custom house for more convenient keeping.

The sack of cocoonants arrived by express from Tampa by way of Monterey several days ago and had not been called for, the Mexican Herald says.

The express messenger, baggage-master and postal clerk, were fast asleep when the train pulled into the station. The express messenger was lying with his head upon the sack and was the most difficult of the three to awaken.

When it was found that they were not drunk examination of the contents of the sack was made and it was found that one of the cocoonants was merely the shell, the space within containing opium. The sack was seized by the authorities on the Texas side of the river and was thrown carelessly into a corner of the office room. It will from now on, however, be stored in the yard until it is disposed of through the usual methods.

VIOLIN MADE OF TOOTHPICKS.

Indiana Man Took a Year to Construct It and Asks $3,374 for It.

Three thousand three hundred and seventy-four dollars is the sum asked for a violin which is constructed of exactly that number of white birchwood toothpicks. This unique musical instrument is the handiwork of Thomas Atkinson, genius and expert maker of freak articles. Mr. Atkinson lives in Greensford, Ind., a small village near this place, where his home is stocked with many articles made by him from time to time, the Hagerstown, (Ind.) Dispatch says.

The violin, which he was more than a year in completing, has been tested by musicians and pronounced high grade in every respect. Its quality of tone is seldom surpassed. Its lines are graceful and the finish perfect.

Before he started to work on this instrument, he discovered that the glue which enters into the construction of violins has much to do with their sounding properties. He heard of a lot of glue found on the premises of an aged cabinetmaker who had imported the stuff years ago from England. This glue was obtained and used in making this remarkable violin. It is also said that white birch, of proper grain and age, makes perfect sounding boards and unsurpassed back for violins.

In the construction of his violin Mr. Atkinson first made a frame, or mold, patterned after a world-famous instrument. It was so constructed that it could be picked to pieces and removed from the completed instrument through the openings. The toothpicks were all fashioned by hand to fit the particular place in which they were to lie. When the violin was completed no one could tell from the outside appearance that it was made of so many tiny bits. Many of the picks were so tiny they could scarcely be seen with the naked eye. When tested by musicians the unique instrument was declared to be extremely valuable for its qualities, apart from its peculiar construction.

The instrument is to be sent to New York, where it will be given every test by skilled musicians. If the verdict be favorable Mr. Atkinson will immediately begin another, on the order of a world-famous violinist.

MR. PLAZAZUS' RECORD.

One of the Reasons Why He Couldn't Get Extension of Credit.

"We're pretty nearly stinkproof," said a banker the other day. "Any time any one puts one over on us he'll have to operate with a mace. Nowadays a bit of information about a client's personal character is considered too pennyroyal for us to notice it."

The statement was called out by the presence on the banker's desk of a large roll of manuscript reports pinned together. The unfortunate who had been made a subject of an ante-mortem had always thought himself a pretty fair sort of a citizen. He hadn't done anything very objectionable beyond getting stewed now and then, riding a bit too fast in autos, and acting as a chronic host for Broadway's chorus girls, the New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Times Star says. It so happened that he wanted an extension of credit and had applied to his bank for it. And the credit man did the rest.

"We have here," said the banker, "the usual Dun and Bradstreet reports on Mr. Plazazus. We have a highly entertaining series of clippings in which our late client appears as the leading man in a lot of funny doings by electric light. We also have statements from every man he has ever worked for, and so far as possible every man he has ever done business with. And still we haven't enough. I have asked for a special report upon certain phases of his activity that are not shown here. Every bank in New York has been victimized at various times by men who offer us an apparently clean bill of health. We don't find out until it is everlastingly too late that they are sufferers from a moral pip. Nowadays a man to get credit standing at a New York bank must pass an examination that would send the average deacon howling to the woods."

In Mr. Plazazus' case his request for a loan was refused and he was asked to take his account out. Not that it wasn't sound financially, but two years ago he had been jobbed by a bunch of shell workers. "A man," said the bank president, "who tries to get money in that way expects to profit by a dishonest game. He's apt to try to hand us a queer check next time he gets hard up. That experience of his proves him to be not merely a fool, but a dishonest fool. We can't afford to waste time on either class."

German Secrets on File.

German's progress in aviation, which the Kaiser's war department has endeavored to keep secret, is now on file at the British war office, which proves incidentally that the British military intelligence department, so long derided, is wide awake. Germany has thirteen airships actually ready for service, including three Zeppelins, three Grosses, four Parsevals and an American machine. There are also in construction another Zeppelin, another Parseval and a new type building by Schutte.

London's Limited Water Supply. London consumes only 90,000,000 gallons of water daily, while New York uses 500,000,000 gallons.

If a man's credit is good it is because he seldom uses it.

YOUNG FOLKS

Chinese Child's Toys.

Few, indeed would be their playthings if the Chinese children had to depend on toy shops for them, says Pearson's Weekly. As it is, the hawk is a familiar sight in every Chinese city, and when the children hear the gong of a toy seller it is a signal for a rush to the front gates. At a call these men slip the pole from their shoulders and set their baskets on the ground, and there is always a group of children ready to gather round them.

A display of toys carried by one of these toy sellers includes many things familiar besides kites, made in the shape of birds, fish, serpents, dragons and even inanimate objects, like bells and houses, will have wind harps fastened on to make them sing while in the air, and will have eyes set loose in their heads, so that when the wind blows the eyes will turn around and look as if they were winking at you.

His paraphernalia also includes a lot of clay molds of different kinds of animals or fruits or other familiar objects, and for "one cash" you can take your choice.

The seller then opens up the bottom tray in his rear basket and shows a bowl of yellow sweets set over a pan of burning charcoal to keep them soft. He rubs a little flour in the molds to keep the sweet from sticking, picks up a little of the soft substance, which he works into a cup shape in his fingers, and then draws it out, closing up the hole. One end is drawn out longer than the other and then broken off. He places his lips to the broken place and begins to blow, and the lump slowly swells.

Then he claps the molds which you have chosen round it, and gives a hard blow, breaks off the stem through which he has been blowing, opens the molds, dips a little bamboo stick into the soft sugar and touches it to the side of the sweetmeat figure in the mold, lifts it out and hands it to you on the stick, all in much less time than it takes to tell about it.

A sweet little girl went shopping. And never in her life felt worse. Then when, after choosing her dolly, she found she'd forgotten her purse. —Youth's Companion.

It Pays to Be Good.

The editor likes boys, they are often abused unjustly. And he often regrets that he hasn't the power to emphasize this fact: A boy can have a better time as a polite and well-behaved boy than as a rough. Having passed through the mill, we know. When we were a boy, we did so many unnecessary foolish things that we spend most of our time now in blushing. Here is one thing that boys can think of with profit: Good boys are always admired. By a good boy we do not mean a sissy or a mollycoddle. A good boy can have a better time than a boy whose parents are always worrying about him. There is nothing which promises a good time that good boy may not do. The mean things boys do always cause them trouble. And we firmly believe that boys are becoming better all the time. Yesterday we witnessed a boy ball game, without hearing an oath or rough word. A boy should always bear his future in mind; he is rapidly becoming a man, and it is uncomfortable to become an unsuccessful man. Therefore, boys should remember that good boys are the first to be offered positions. Employers are always contending with each other for the good boys. But employers always say of a boy with a bad reputation: "He isn't worth powder and lead to blow him up."

The Cornucopia.

The cornucopia, or "horn of plenty," is a familiar figure in architecture and sculpture, where it is represented as filled to overflowing with fruits and flowers. Most of our little readers have seen it, no doubt, but it may be that they do not know how it originated. The old writers say that it came from Jupiter, the supreme deity of the Romans, and this is the way of it: Rhea, Jupiter's mother, soon after he was born, gave him to the daughters of Melisseus, king of Crete as his nurses. They fed him with milk from the goat Amalthea, an animal that was sometimes badly treated by the infant god. One day, it is said, in a fit of temper, he broke off one of Amalthea's horns and gave it to his nurses, endowing it with the power of becoming filled with whatever its possessor might wish. That horn became the cornucopia.

Had Heard Father Speak of It.

The minister was addressing the Sunday school.

"Children, I want to talk to you for a few moments about one of the most wonderful, one of the most important, organs in the whole world," he said.

"What is it that throbs away, beats away, never stopping, never ceasing, whether you wake or sleep, night or day, week in and week out, month in and month out, year in and year out, without any volition on your part, hidden away in the depths, as it were, unseen by you, throbbing, throbbing, throbbing rhythmically all your life long?"

During this pause for oratorical effect a small voice was heard.

THE GHOST AT THE FEAST.

What the Ensign Saw and What Happened After Dinner.

In "The Story of My Life," by Augustus Hare, is told the following creepy story:

A regiment was passing through Derbyshire on its way to fresh quarters in the north. The colonel, as they stayed for the night in one of the country towns, was invited to dine at a country house in the neighborhood and to bring any one he liked with him. Consequently he took with him a young ensign for whom he had a great fancy. They arrived, and it was a large party, but the lady of the house did not appear till just as they were going in to dinner and when she appeared was so strangely distraught and preoccupied that she scarcely attended to anything that was said to her.

At dinner the colonel observed that his young companion scarcely ever took his eyes off the lady of the house, staring at her in a way which seemed at once rude and unaccountable. It made him observe the lady herself, and he saw that she seemed scarcely to attend to anything said by her neighbors on either side of her, but rather seemed, in a manner quite unaccountable, to be listening to some one or something behind her.

As soon as dinner was over the young ensign came to the colonel and said: "Oh, do take me away! I entreat you to take me away from this place."

The colonel said: "Indeed, your conduct is so very extraordinary and unpleasant that I quite agree with you that the best thing we can do is to go away." And he made the excuse of his young friend being ill and ordered their carriage.

When they had driven some distance the colonel asked the ensign for an explanation of his conduct. He said that he could not help it. During the whole of dinner he had seen a terrible black, shadowy figure standing behind the chair of the lady of the house, and it had seemed to whisper to her and she to listen to it. He had scarcely told this when a man on horseback rode rapidly past the carriage, and the colonel, recognizing one of the servants of the house they had just left, called out to know if anything was the matter.

"Oh, don't stop me, sir!" he shouted. "I am going for the doctor! My lady has just cut her throat!"

PAUL A PRISONER—IN ROME. Acts 28: 11-24, 30-31.

GOLDEN TEXT:—I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Rms. 1:16

After three months at Malta of testifying of the Lord Jesus, the result of which eternity will declare, they proceeded toward Rome, tarrying three days at Syracuse, in Sicily, one day at Rhegium, in the extreme south of Italy, and seven days at Puteoli, where they found believers. The brethren at Rome, having heard of Paul's arrival at Puteoli, came out to meet him as far as Appii forum and the three taverns, thus encouraging him and causing thanksgiving to God. Then they returned with him to Rome. There is a suggestion here of the way it will be at the coming of the Lord. When He comes to the air on His way back to earth the saints shall all meet him in the air and later be manifested with Him in glory, when He shall come to the same Olivet from which He ascended (I Thess. iv, 16-18; Col. iii, 4; Zech. xiv, 4). Arriving at Rome, the other prisoners were delivered to the captain of the guard, but Paul was permitted to dwell by himself with a soldier who kept him. For two whole years he dwelt in his own hired house and received all that came to him, preaching the kingdom of God and teaching the things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ with the most perfect freedom (16, 30, 31). We shall meditate more fully on this delightful occupation presently. After three days in Rome Paul called the chief of the Jews together that he might state his case to them, which he briefly did in facts with which we are already familiar, and he added, "For the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain" (20).

In Joel iii, 16, we read that in the time of trouble the Lord will be the hope of His people and the strength of the children of Israel. In I Tim. i, 1, Paul says that he is an apostle of Jesus Christ by the commandment of God our Saviour and Lord Jesus Christ our hope, but in the New Testament I think we are safe in saying that "hope" always refers to the coming of Christ for His saints, as in Tit. ii, 13; Heb. vi, 18-20; Rom. viii, 23-25. The hope of Israel would then be the coming of Christ as Israel's Messiah to make of them a righteous nation and bless all nations through them. This implies Jesus, as the seed of David, risen from the dead, and also the resurrection of the saints according to Dan. xii, 1, 2. When Paul stated his case before these Jews of Rome they said that they had not heard of his troubles in Jerusalem, nor had any one spoken any harm of him, but they would like to hear what he had to say about this sect, which they knew was everywhere spoken against (22). It was foretold that it would be so (Ps. cxviii, 22; Isa. viii, 14, 15; Luke ii, 34), and to this day it is so, for our Lord is still rejected and by the world disowned, but the strange thing is that, even among those who accept the Lord Jesus Christ as their Saviour and expect to spend eternity with Him and are with more or less zeal seeking to serve Him now, there is such antipathy to anything concerning His second coming or the future of Israel as a righteous nation to bring blessing to all nations.

It may truly be said that as the hope of His church or the hope of Israel He is still spoken against by those who, like these Jews, profess to honor His word. Well, they appointed him a day and came to his lodging, and from morning till evening he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus both out of the law of Moses and out of the prophets (23). For two years he continued to do this with all who came to him. He had but one topic—the Lord Jesus Christ and His kingdom. He had but one book—the Scriptures. If the Scriptures are not wholly and absolutely reliable, then preachers are simply lecturers, talking out of their own hearts their own messages, which are all vain words, for, apart from the word of God, which is forever settled in heaven (Ps. cxix, 89), we have no revelation of the will of God and the purpose of God; but, thank God, there are many left who, like Paul, believe God that all things shall be just as He has told us and who, like our blessed Lord, find in all the Scriptures, the law, the prophets and the Psalms, the things concerning Himself (Luke xxiv, 27, 44). The teacher of the Bible should be able to begin at Moses and from all the book point out the predictions concerning the sufferings of Christ and the glory that shall follow as they are set forth in shadow and symbol and in plain statements. Gen. iii, 15, has both in one verse; Gen. iii, 21, is full of the sufferings and the benefit to us; Gen. iii, 24, talks of the resurrection and the glory.

The story of Abel tells us in type of suffering and of the blood that speaketh better things than that of Abel. The story of Enoch, in the light of the epistle of Jude, tells of suffering and of the glory of translation. In Noah and Lot we learn, with our Lord's comment, of the judgments which must precede the kingdom. In Abraham and his son we see the great sacrifice and learn to look for the city. Joseph helps us to be patient and to believe that every step, however great the darkness, is a step toward the throne.

SUGAR TRUST IS GETTING "GOOD"

Public Scorn Brings It To Promising Point.

WILL GLADLY DISGORGE LOOT

Treasurer of the Company That Is Just New Under Government Fire Expresses Astonishment at Revelations of Graft and Says if the Trust Owes Uncle Sam Anything It Will Gladly Pay Up—Arrest of Bendernagel, For Years Superintendent of Big Refinery and Confidant of Havemeyer, Promises an Explosion.

Washington, Nov. 13.—"A nest of corruption" was the way Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury, referred to the New York custom house. He has been aroused by the conditions that prevail there and apparently is determined to get at the bottom of things.

New York, Nov. 13.—The details of the system organized by a master mind, by which the sugar trust has robbed the treasury of the United States of millions, is coming to light little by little. Congressman W. S. Bennett, who is one of Congressman Parsons's leaders in the Republican organization, went to see Collector Loeb and United States Attorney Wise yesterday to ask if a congressional investigation was desirable. The result of his inquiries made it appear that an investigation was not "desirable." Mr. Bennett did not say whether anybody had sent him to find out. He said:

"Upon publication of reports in relation to the situation in the customs service, I consulted with Attorney Wise regarding the advisability of a congressional investigation. Mr. Wise informed me that such an investigation at this time would be prejudicial to the courts of criminal jurisdiction, and I shall of course abide by his judgment." Mr. Bennett did not express how a congressional investigation would interfere with attempts to get at the whole truth concerning the sugar trust's inquiry.

James F. Bendernagel, for many years general superintendent of the Williamsburg plants of the American Sugar Refining company, had been indicted by the federal grand jury in connection with the sugar weighing frauds on Nov. 4 last. Mr. Bendernagel was evidently apprised of what was coming, for he was found at his home on Division street, Williamsburg, yesterday with his counsel, Henry F. Cochrane, waiting to be arrested. Deputy Marshal Proctor took him at once before United States Commissioner Benedict in Brooklyn, where bail was fixed at $5,000 and his examination set for next Monday. Mr. Cochrane, as counsel, produced $5,000 in cash immediately and secured the release of his client. Mr. Cochrane was one of the lawyers for the sugar trust at its recent trial for smuggling sugar.

The indictment of Mr. Bendernagel gave further strength to the rumor that some of the men already indicted for the same offense had confessed. The indictment thus made public is a blanket indictment and names as defendants besides Bendernagel, Oliver Spitzer, the dock superintendent; Thomas Kehoe, G. Voelker, Edward A. Boyle, John R. Coyle and P. J. Hennessey. These men were indicted some time ago. Spitzer, as dock superintendent, worked under Bendernagel, but only recently the government investigators seemed to have been balked in following the trail beyond Spitzer. Bendernagel and Mr. Havemeyer were the closest friends. Bendernagel is a director of the Eastern District hospital, vice president of the Hanover club in Brooklyn, and a member of the Congress club. He is one of the best-known men in Williamsburg, is prominent in Republican politics and was an alternate to the national Republican convention in 1896. He has been drawing a salary of $25,000 a year from the trust and for twenty-five years has been in its employ.

Treasurer Arthur Donner of the American Sugar Refining company said that should the government present any evidence that the company owed it any more money, it would gladly pay up. He said that the company's officers were of the opinion that they had struck an honest balance with the government.

Mr. Donner seemed to be surprised at the evidence presented regarding the new chapter of frauds in the appraiser's stores. "I came to this company in 1900, I believe," he said. "I never heard of any such transactions. I would not have countenanced any such thing."

Discussed the Holt Decision.

Washington, Nov. 13.—President Taft arrived at the White House early this morning from his Hartford, Conn., trip. His next trip will be to Norfolk, Va., next week. Mr. Taft has conferred with Attorney General Wickersham in regard to the prosecution of the sugar trust directors. The recent decision of Judge Holt was under discussion. This decision gave the directors immunity under the statute of limitations.

Good Cough Medicine for Children and Grown Folks, Too.

"We could hardly do without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Mrs. Flora Despain, of Boyd, Ky. "I have found it to be so good for the croup and have used it for years. I can heartily recommend it for coughs, colds and croup in children and old folks, too." The above shows the explicit confidence that many mothers place in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a confidence based on many year's experience in the use of it. No one need hesitate to use this remedy for it contains no chloroform, opium or other narcotics and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. For sale by C. W. Milhous.

COSTA RICA INVADED

Revolution in Nicaragua May Involve a Neighboring Republic.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The revolution in Nicaragua has extended over into Costa Rica and complications threaten to develop between President Zelaya of Nicaragua and the government of Costa Rica. The state department has been informed that Nicaraguan troops engaged in fighting a revolutionary force had invaded Costa Rica on the south banks of the San Juan river. The government of Costa Rica has asked Nicaragua for an explanation of the incident. The present situation in Central America is regarded by officers of the state department as serious.

Croup Cured and a Child's Life Saved.

"It affords me great pleasure to add my testimony to that of the thousands who have been benefited by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My child, Andrew, when only three years old, was taken with a severe attack of croup, and thanks to the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy his life was saved and today he is a robust and healthy boy," says Mrs. A. Coy, Jr., of San Antonio, Texas. This remedy has been in use for many years. Thousands of mothers keep it at hand and it has never been known to fail. For sale by C. W. Milhous.

SENTENCE DEFERRED

Court Will Act in the St. Jean Murder Case Next Week.

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 12.—Frank L. Hill, the herb doctor charged with killing Amelia St. Jean, was put on the stand. Questioned by the district attorney, he told how the St. Jean girl came to her death, reiterating the statement made by his counsel that she used the instruments herself to perform an operation and that her death resulted from her own act.

Judge Stevens announced that he would defer sentence until some time next week.

A Methodist Minister Recommends Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for diarrhoea. I consider it the best remedy I ever tried for that trouble. I bought a bottle of it a few days ago from our druggist, Mr. R. R. Brooks. I shall ever be glad to speak a word in its praise when I have the opportunity."—REV. J. D. KNAPP, Pastor M. E. Church, Miles Grove, Pa. Sold by C. W. Milhous.

No Rest For the President.

Washington, Nov. 12.—President Taft left Washington last evening for another trip. He will visit Hartford and Middletown, Conn., and will make a speech at each place. He is to return to Washington tomorrow. At Middletown Mr. Taft will participate in the installation of a new president of Wesleyan university.

What Would You Do?

In a case of burn or scald what would you do to relieve the pain? Such injuries are liable to occur in any family and everyone should be prepared for them. Chamberlain's Salve applied on a soft cloth will relieve the pain almost instantly, and unless the injury is a very severe one, will cause the parts to heal without leaving a scar. For sale by C. W. Milhous.

Auto Caught at Crossing.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 12.—E. L. Hesy of Clarksville, Ia., and J. A. Thompson of Allison, Ia., were badly injured at Rochelle when a Chicago, Burlington & Quincy train from Minneapolis struck their auto at a crossing. The auto was hurled 200 feet and wrecked.

KANSAS YOUTH TEMPTED FATE

Returned to Rob Eudora Bank the Second Time.

PAID FOR IT WITH HIS LIFE

A Month Ago Nineteen-Year-Old Earl Bullock Robbed the Bank at Eudora and Killed a Policeman—Emboldened by First Success, He Emerged From Hiding and Worked the Trick a Second Time, This Time Shooting an Assistant Cashier—A Posse Soon Rounded Him Up, However, and He Is Dying From a Bullet Wound.

Eudora, Kan., Nov. 13.—The nineteen-year-old bandit, Earl Bullock, who robbed the state bank of Eudora on Oct. 11, returned yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock with a companion, held up the cashier and robbed the bank again. While the robbers were at work Fred Starr, assistant cashier of the Kaw Valley State bank of Eudora, entered the Eudora State bank with the day's clearings. The robbers shot him through the jaw. Grabbing all the money they could reach, the robbers ran out of the back door. A posse was at once formed. The robbers fled to the hills west of town. The posse surrounded them there. A fight took place in the hills between the posse and robbers. After a few shots had been fired Bullock fell with a bullet through his head. The bullet is supposed to have been fired by his own hand. Bullock's companion, a youth named McKay, surrendered.

Bullock, although life was almost extinct, was carried to Eudora and placed in the city hall. A big crowd surrounded the building awaiting the news that he was dead. Around Bullock's wrist was found a leather band. Wrapped in it was a diamond engagement ring.

Early in October two revolvers were stolen from a hardware store in Lawrence. Earl Bullock was suspected of the theft, and when a deputy sheriff went to arrest him he found Bullock had gone to Eudora, a few miles from Lawrence. He followed him there, arriving in time to find Bullock in the Eudora State bank talking to the cashier, T. E. Wilson. The deputy sheriff told Bullock he was under arrest.

As Woods turned to talk to Wilson, Bullock drew a pistol from his pocket and forced the deputy sheriff and the cashier to walk into the bank vault, which Bullock closed after them. Bullock then took $800 and hurried to Lawrence. Two hours after they had been locked up Woods and Wilson were released from the vault.

Woods at once telegraphed to Lawrence of his adventure, and Wilson Pringle, a policeman, was sent to the home of Bullock's mother to see if the young man was there. Bullock had just arrived from Eudora. He met the policeman at the door of his mother's house. A shot from one of the stolen revolvers was Bullock's reply when the officer told him he was under arrest. The bullet struck Pringle in the neck, and he died a few hours later.

It was to get money so that he could marry a girl and take her to Kansas City that Bullock robbed the bank at Eudora, according to the belief of the police in Lawrence.

ON HIS HONOR

Everton Hypnotizes Jailor but Does Not Accept Freedom.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 13.—Prof. Arthur Everton, the hypnotist, has waited in vain in the Somerset county jail for his friends to come from Newark with $4,000 cash bail to secure his release.

That Everton's respect for the law is the only thing that stands between himself and liberty he fully demonstrated before four members of the medical staff of the Somerset hospital when he hypnotized Keeper James P. Major of the county jail.

There is no doubt in the minds of the authorities that Everton could hypnotize Major and escape if he were disposed, but the professor has made a favorable impression, both with the doctors and the authorities. Sheriff Rankoff states that he has so much confidence in Everton that he will not humiliate him by placing an extra guard over him during the night.

General Carter Promoted.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Major General John F. Weston, commanding officer of the department of California, was placed on the retired list today, having reached sixty-four years of age. The vacancy in the grade of major general has been filled by the promotion of Brigadier General William H. Carter, now in command of the department of Luzon, of the Philippine division.

He Had Not Forgotten.

Kewanee, Ill., Nov. 13.—Fifty dollars in bills was in a letter received by Mrs. Frank H. Davis from a tramp to whom she gave supper ten years ago. The letter is signed simply "The Tramp," but tells the writer now is in comfortable circumstances at Cripple Creek, Col., and that Mrs. Davis will hear from him again.

MRS. STEWART WANTS TO TELL IT TO COURT

"The Woman In the Case" Says She Knows Things.

Cincinnati, Nov. 12.—The alleged "woman in the case" in the Warriner defalcation, Mrs. Jeannette Stewart, or Ford, consented to answer a number of questions.

"Did you ever receive money from Charles Warriner?" "I did not."

"Did you ever receive any money from Cook?" "I did; at various times." "How much?" "I don't know." "Can't you guess, approximately?" "No."

"How was this money paid?" "In currency." "Bills?" "Yes."

"Was it blackmail?" "It most certainly was not." "Did you know that Cook had received it as blackmail, if he had?" "I certainly did not. I didn't know where he got it." "I hold letters, and when I make them public, they'll make those around the Big Four offices sit up and take notice. At the proper time I will make them public. Why don't they arrest me, if they think I've taken blackmail money? Those letters tell why they don't arrest me. They've tried by every means in their power to get to this correspondence. Someone, a man whom I don't know, called me up late Wednesday and threatened me with harm if I didn't give up Cook's letters, but he didn't frighten me. They are the only weapon I have, and I'll hold them to the last."

"I only hope they let me go before the grand jury. If they don't I'll bring the whole business into court myself."

CLEARS UP MYSTERY

Wisconsin Jeweler Murdered by His Wife, According to Their Daughter.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Henry Brodenheyer, a jeweler of Madison, Wis., who was found dead near his home in the summer of 1906, and who was believed to have been murdered by robbers, was killed by his wife, Margaret Brodenheyer, now a patient at the Dunning insane asylum here, according to a confession just made by Clara Brodenheyer, their daughter, to Assistant Chief of Police Schuetzler.

The girl, who is eighteen years old, said she had aided in disposing of the body and that the crime had driven her mother insane.

Miss Brodenheyer has not been arrested and probably will not be prosecuted because of her confession.

The woman, according to her daughter, satisfied herself of her husband's infidelity and shot him, then told the girl he had committed suicide. The daughter did not believe her mother's story and accused her of killing him. She said that Mrs. Brodenheyer confessed the murder and asked her to aid her in concealing the crime. The body was then hidden in a clump of bushes and the tale of robbery manufactured.

Mrs. Brodenheyer was confronted at Dunning by detectives, who told her that her daughter had confessed her crime. Without a betrayal of emotion the woman confirmed the confession and said she killed her husband because she believed he had been guilty of infidelity.

Because of her adjudgment for insanity, Prosecutor Mason, who came here from Madison to examine the woman, declared that she probably never could be tried for the crime.

Disturbing News Comes From the Prince Rupert Country.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 13.—Telegrams from Hazelton to Premier McBride says women and children are being sent in canoes down the Skeena to Prince Rupert in view of the threatening attitude of the Indians. Police reinforcements have been sent from Prince Rupert by special steamer to go as far as possible by water and then take the river. The Indians volunteer assurances that outgoing canoes will not be molested.

They Had Had Enough.

Alton, Ill., Nov. 13.—Two crews on Wabash extra trains after completing the legal limit of sixteen hours' work, abandoned their trains near here and went to sleep in the cabooses. A special train from here pushed the two stalled trains into Alton, where new crews took charge of them.

If you desire a clear complexion take Foley's Orino Laxative for constipation and liver trouble as it will stimulate these organs and thoroughly cleanse your system, which is what every one needs in order to feel well. Sold by all druggists.

Worn Women

Women, worn and tired from overwork, need a tonic. That feeling of weakness or helplessness will not leave you of itself. You should take Wine of Cardui, that effectual remedy for the ailments and weaknesses of women. Thousands of women have tried Cardui and write enthusiastically of the great benefit it has been to them. Try it—don't experiment—use this reliable, oft-tried medicine.

TAKE CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Rena Hare, of Pierce, Fla., tried Cardui and afterward wrote: "I was a sufferer from all sorts of female trouble, had pain in my side and legs, could not sleep, had shortness of breath. I suffered for years, until my husband insisted on my trying Cardui. The first bottle gave me relief and now I am almost well." Try Cardui. 'Twill help you.

THE new mayors elected in Indiana are all telling the public that they will enforce the laws in their respective cities. Some of them mean what they say and others do not. The character of the man made chief of police will indicate the sincerity of the mayor as to law enforcement.

THE leaders and always-to-be-relied-upon party workers in the Republican ranks, who, much to their credit, stand for those old and well-tried protective tariff principles, should study the tendency of the people of Indiana and make no mistake in the approaching campaign. Senator Beveridge is our recognized leader; we must look to him for guidance, and work with him in harmony. It is he who is making a progressive fight upon the tariff, and close behind are the people—not all Republicans, but we hope all Republicans are in the procession—and if we keep in confidence with him, and with the people of Indiana, we will win in 1910, and he will be returned to the United States Senate to complete his great work along tariff lines, as well as creditably represent Indiana as a high-minded, progressive statesman on all questions of government. Make up your mind to carry Indiana for the Republicans and for Senator Beveridge in 1910.—Bloomfield News.

Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

William H. Bower, the well known lumber dealer from Kurtz, who has been in a very serious condition from heart trouble for some time, was in the city Friday. His recovery so far has been almost remarkable but he is still far from being well. His many friends here were glad to see him again and hope that his improvement will continue. He has been partly under the care of the Seymour physicians.

Too Willing.
Mr. and Mrs. Blank had had a series of petty quarrels in their elegant apartment in New York. In the midst of her tears over the latest of these disagreements Mrs. Blank announced that she would make an immediate visit of a month to her mother's home in the country for a rest from Mr. Blank's abuse.

Mr. Blank did his best to dissemble and hide his inward joy at this decision as he hurried to the station, bought tickets, hurried back home, pulled off his coat, plunged into the cellar, logged out her trunks and commenced to pack.

Lying upon a couch, she watched him through her tears with great curiosity. From time to time, in reply to many questions, she advised him what articles would be useful in the country, and they were eagerly included.

Perspiring and exhausted after some hours of preparatory detail for her departure, he sank into a chair and said: "Everything is ready now. You have abundant time to catch your train." "I have decided," she softly said, "not to go."

ARRESTED JANITOR AS AN ACCOMPLICE

Thought to Have Been In Plot With Boy Bandit.

New Albany, Ind., Nov. 13.—Henry Alexander, janitor of the Merchants' National bank, was arrested after a severe cross-questioning by the police. Besides making several conflicting statements, he admitted to the police that he opened the side door by which Thomas J. Hall, the seventeen-year-old bandit, entered and killed Cashier Fawcett and fatally wounded President Woodward. He declared that he admitted Hall only after being threatened with a revolver. The arrest was made on the theory that a plot existed between Hall, Alexander and the negro chauffeur, Tucker, to loot the bank.

President Woodward, who was shot by Hall, is barely holding his own. The bullet pierced the intestines and liver. James Tucker, the negro chauffeur, is still in a critical condition. Hall probably never will be brought to trial for murder. His mind is believed to be a wreck from reading and brooding over lurid literature, and he will be sent to an asylum. Safely behind the walls of the state reformatory at Jeffersonville, the youth talked freely of his crime. The boy is evidently half insane. He imagines he is a hero.

DEED WAS INVALID

Alabama Supreme Court Comes to the Rescue of Mother Love.

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 13.—Impelled by fear that her oldest son would be sent to the penitentiary, Mrs. Mary D. Evans, husbandless, with five children, signed away her home, her only possession, to cover his alleged shortage. But the supreme court of Alabama recognizes the force of mother love and has restored her property in an opinion just rendered affirming the decree of Chancellor Smith of Mobile that when Mrs. Evans, grief-stricken, signed the deed, she was acting under duress and undue influence.

John K. Evans, her son, was employed by Ed Martin as bookkeeper and general manager of a livery business for five years. When the boy, twenty years old, left the position to establish himself in business, his accounts were audited and a shortage of between $4,000 and $5,000 discovered, it is claimed. Martin threatened the boy, according to the complaint, with the penitentiary, but after a conference declared that he would accept $2,500 in settlement.

New Freight Service.

The Indianapolis and Louisville Traction Co., have inaugurated freight and express service to and from Louisville, Ky. This arrangement has been pending for some time and is now in effect.

The freight service is so arranged that deliveries are made at Seymour and Louisville early in the morning. The rates for this service are the same as via the steam road.

An express service is also in effect on the passenger cars at low rates. This service makes it possible for any one to get shipments from Louisville in two or three hours time. If they desire anything quickly they can telephone to Louisville and have the article desired, sent out on the next passenger car. The inauguration of this service will undoubtedly prove a good benefit to Seymour and other points on the traction line.

Any information in regard to same will be gladly furnished by the officials of the company.

The traction lines have also recently issued a joint basing and selling tariff showing through passenger fares to points in Ohio and Indiana reached by the traction lines. This tariff has been in preparation for the past year requiring numerous meetings of the traction officials of the traction lines to compile same. The tariff is a book of nearly 300 pages showing fares from 32 headline points. This tariff will enable passengers to ascertain how much the fare would be to their destination and will be of great benefit to the traveling public.

Announcemt.

We are pleased to announce that the Spaunhurst Osteopathic Physicians, ten years, fifth floor State Life building, Indianapolis, have been induced to open a branch office in Seymour. It will be gratifying to former patrons and friends to know these physicians, who are foremost in the osteopathic profession, will make regular trips here every Monday and Thursday.

The Indianapolis Sun in an Editorial recently said:

"The State of Indiana has added its approval of the osteopath by placing one member of that school on the state medical board. Dr. John F. Spaunhurst is an able man in this new science. Governor Marshall could not have selected a better man for the place." Dr. Spaunhurst and associates received their training immediately under the founder of osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., and they number among their patients the most prominent families of Indianapolis.

They are unquestioned in skill, unusual in ability, and full in sympathy, which inspires them to diligence, in personal endeavor to restore sick people to health. They make no claims beyond the simple facts and conditions, neither will they advise treatment unless relief or commensurate benefit is possible, hence we commend them to the afflicted of this community, and we bespeak for them the liberal support to which their fair dealing and effectual methods entitle them.

~ PINKIE PRIM ~

Thanksgiving. Pinkie and the children are playing with Grandpa, Grandma, Mr. Prim, Mrs. Prim, and all the older persons are chatting before.

Suddenly the dinner bell rings and the children make a rush for the dining room. "All yo' chiluns mus' wait for de secon' table," announced aunt Dinah as they gathered in anticipation.

"Boo Hoo! I don't want to wait and get the scraps!" Pinkie's little cousin Justin began to wail. "Children always have to wait and that's not fair!" he continued.

Here, cousin Justin, began Pinkie, "we to be thankful for everything, no matter all it is. Think of the poor people who by dinner today, not even scraps!"

"You wouldn't want your mama or papa to wait in your place would you?" "N-N-No," answered Justin. "Then us children ought to be glad to wait for them," Pinkie replied.

"I know it's hard for us to always have to wait, but we must remember our mamas and papas had to wait when they were children just as we do. When we grow up we'll be first," Pinkie concluded.

PRACTICAL LESSONS IN DRAWING No. 7

For this week's drawing lesson we have our old tried and true friend—the dog. The drawing lesson proper is the pointer bird dog pictured in the characteristic pose when on a "point." To begin the lesson, first draw a square on your paper, as is indicated by the dotted lines in Fig. (2), then block in the figure as indicated by the lines in Fig. (2). Compare each part in relation to the other, such as the ear as compared with the length of the face, the fore and hind legs in relation to the length of the body, etc.

The figure of the little Yorkshire terrier that is shown is intended for you to draw without the diagram, so as to give you more practice in measuring rapidly by the aid of the eye alone, as this must be the ultimate aim of every student in drawing. If at first you do not get it to suit you as compared with the copy, TRY, TRY AGAIN!

NOTE.—It is imperative that all who have taken advantage of these drawing lessons, that they begin with the first lesson and continue through each succeeding lesson and if for any reason you have failed to get any of the lessons be sure and do so by applying at this office. Keep all the lessons for future reference and remember to PRACTICE! PRACTICE! PRACTICE!

Great Actor.

It takes a real actor to successfully carry a leading part in a Shakespearean play and that is what William Owen is who heads the company that plays "As You Like It" at the Majestic in this city next Tuesday afternoon and evening. He appeared here
a few years ago in the play, "School
For Scandal" and made a fine impression. Between now and next Tuesday get down your Shakespeare and read "As You Like It" and then go see the play.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Kennard went to Columbus Saturday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Frank Kennard.

Taffy Pull.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Peters entertained Friday evening in honor of William Williamson, of Lancaster, a brother of Mrs. Peters. During the evening games were played, but one of the most pleasant features was a taffy pull which was thoroughly enjoyed by those present. Elegant refreshments were served to the twenty guests, who enjoyed the hospitality of
Mr. and Mrs. Peters.

Correction.

On Thursday the REPUBLICAN was informed that a daughter was born to

We have since learned that the report that came to us was not true, therefore this correction is made.

A Blow in the Back.—An overcoat is a necessary nuisance and the tendency to take it off on warmish days in late autumn and

THE AUTUMN SONG.

The flowers are dying and birds are flying,
Where skies are sunny and ever blue;
The chill winds strengthen and shadows lengthen,
As early fall the evening dew.
The fruit is mellow, and elms are yellow
With goldenrod, while the tinted leaves
Are softly falling, when winds are calling,
And reapers garner the ripened sheaves.

The tall sunflowers grace Nature's bowers,
The grapes hang heavy upon the vine,
The corn is turning, and youth is yearning
For fun and frolic at husking time;
Then life is beauty as well as duty,
And voices echo the heart's gay tune,
With light feet dancing and soft eyes glancing,
Beneath the glow of the harvest moon.

All Nature's story is full of glory,
A golden glory that fades ere long;
For time is flying, and hearts are sighing,
And brooks are singing a farewell song.
There's much of gladness and much of sadness,
We sometimes laugh and we sometimes cry;
The bloom is piling, the light is failing,
And south winds whisper a soft good-bye.

Mrs. Smith's Honeymoon

She was leaning against the railing gazing wistfully down upon the sea of faces on the landing down. Despite her 30 years there was something girlish in her shrinking figure—a suggestion of the incipient emotions of youth. She descended to her stateroom. At the door she found the stewardess, who inquired if she was Mrs. L. Smith.

"That is my name, and I am going to be ill."

"Lie down at once. And about this bag? I thought it would give you more space if I put it in the gentleman's room."

Lucy Smith looked up in mystification. "But it is mine," she explained, "and I want it."

The next day, she struggled up and left her stateroom, the stewardess following with her wraps. At the foot of the stairs she swayed and fell upon the lowest step. "It's no use," she said, plaintively. "I can't go up—I can't, indeed."

The stewardess spoke with professional encouragement. "Oh, you're all right," she remonstrated. "Here's the gentleman now, he'll help you."

Some one lifted her, and in a moment she was on deck and in her chair.

"Perhaps you would like yesterday's paper?" said a voice.

The man in the next chair leaned toward her, holding a paper in his hand.

"I am ill," she answered.

He did not reply, and in a moment his glance wandered to the card upon her chair. "Odd, isn't it," he questioned.

She followed his gaze and colored faintly. Then he pointed to a similar label upon his own chair, hearing in a rough scrawl the name "L. Smith."

"It is a very common name," she remarked absently.

He laughed. "Very," he admitted. "Perhaps your husband is Lawrence Smith also."

The smile passed from her lips.

"My husband is dead," she answered, "but his name was Lucien."

For a time they sat silent. Then, as the luncheon gong sounded he rose. "You will have chicken broth," he said distinctly.

A little later the broth was brought. That evening they lay side by side in their stateroom chairs. He was gazing out to sea, where the water broke into waves of deepening gray. Suddenly he spoke, his voice ringing like a jarring discord in a harmonious whole.

"Five days ago a man called me a devil," he said, "and I guess he wasn't far wrong, only if I was a single devil he was a legion steeped in one. What a scoundrel he was!"

The passion in his tones caused her to start quickly. The words were shot out with the force of balls from a cannon. "Don't," she said pleadingly.

"Don't what?" he demanded roughly. "Don't curse the blackest scoundrel that ever lived—and died?"

"Don't curse anybody," she answered. "It is not like you."

"I never had much use for belief," he returned. "It is a poor sort of thing."

She met his bitter gaze with one of level calm. "And yet men have suffered death for it."

"Well, believe in me if you choose," he said.

"How about your faith?" he inquired one day after a passing tenderness. "Is it still the evidence of virtues not visible in me?"

She flinched, as she always did at his flippancy. "That is not kind of you," she said.

"But, my dear lady, I am not kind."

Her mouth quivered.

"Do you mean to say," he asked, adjusting the rug about her shoulders, "that it makes any difference to you?"

The fragment of a sob broke from her. "Of course it makes a difference," she answered—

His face was very grave. The hand upon her shoulder trembled. "I hope it does not make a difference," he said. "Look! There is a sail!"

They rose and went to the railing, following with straining eyes a white sail that skirted the horizon.

He leaned nearer. His hand brushed hers as it lay upon the railing.

"Did love make you happy?"

She raised her lashes. "Love?"

"That husband of yours," he explained almost harshly, "did you love him?"

"He was very good to me," she replied. Then she hesitated. "But I did not love him in the way you mean. I know now that I did not."

He bent toward her swiftly, then checked himself with a sneering laugh.

"I'll give you a piece of valuable advice," he said. "Don't allow yourself to grow sentimental. It is awful rot."

And he threw himself into his chair. He drew a notebook from his pocket and when she seated herself he did not look up.

An hour later their glances met.

"When you love, love a virtuous, straightforward plodder," he said. "Love a man because he is decent—because he is decent and plain and all the things that the romancers laugh at. If you ever find yourself loving a man like me, you had better make for the nearest lamp post and—hang—"

"Hush!" she cried, her cheeks flaming. "How dare you?"

Her voice broke sharply, and she fell to sobbing behind her raised hands.

"My God!" he said softly. She felt his breath upon her forehead and a tremor passed over her. Then his hands fastened upon hers and drew them from her eyes. Then she felt the man's lips close upon her own.

He drew away from her. "You are too delicate for my rough hands," he said.

"Am I?" Then a rising passion swelled in her voice. "I should choose to be broken by you to being caressed by any other man."

"Don't say that," he protested hoarsely.

"Why not, since it is true?"

"There is time yet," he said, "to withdraw a false play. Take your love back."

"I cannot," she replied.

He stretched out his arms as if to draw her toward him. Then he shrank back.

"Believe in me if you choose."

back. "What a mess you are making of your life!"

"How will you prevent it?"

"By an appeal to reason."

"What love was ever ruled by reason?"

"Great God!" he retorted passionately. "Look things in the face. What do you know of me?"

"I know that I love you."

"I would give two-thirds of my future—such as it is—if I had not known you."

"And yet you love me."

"My love is a rotten reed," he said. "Listen!"

She bent her head.

"From the beginning I have lied to you—lied, do you hear? I singled you out for my own selfish ends. All my kindness, as you call it, was because of its usefulness to me. While you looked on in innocence I made you a tool in my hands for the furtherance of my own purpose."

"There is not a soul in this boat but believes me to be your husband. I have created the impression because I was a desperate man and it aided me. My name is not even Lawrence Smith."

"Stop!" she said faintly.

"I left England a hunted man. When I reach the other side I shall find them still upon my tracks. It is for an act which they call an ugly name. And yet I would do it over again. It was justice."

Her quivering face was turned away.

"I reached Southampton with the assistance of a friend. He secured a stateroom from an L. Smith, who was delayed. I took his name as a safeguard, and when I saw yours beside me at table I concluded he was your husband and I played his part in the eyes of the passengers. It succeeded well." He laughed bitterly.

Then before her stricken eyes his recklessness fell from him. "Oh, if I could undo this," he said, "I would go back gladly to stand my chances of the gallows."

"Hush!" she said wildly.

"You must believe this," he went on passionately, "that at the last I loved you. You must believe."

"No, no!" she cried. And she fled into the obscurity of her stateroom.

When she came upon deck next day it was high tide, and the steamer was drawing into New York.

"There is no harm in good-bys," said a voice at her side.

He was looking down upon her, his eyes filled with the old haunting gloom. "Good-by," she answered.

"And you will go home like a sensible woman and forget?"

"I will go home."

His face whitened. "And forget?"

She looked up at him, her eyes wet with tears. "Oh, how could you?" she cried brokenly. "How could you?"

"Don't think of me," he responded. "It is not worth the trouble."

Then a voice startled them.

"So you have got your wife safely across, Mr. Smith," it said, "and no worse for the voyage."

It was the ship's surgeon. "I am afraid it was not the brightest of honeymoons," he added.

A man with a telegram in his hand passed them, glancing from right to left. He stopped suddenly, wheeled round, and came toward them.

All at once her voice rang clear. She laid her hand upon the arm of the man beside her. "It is a honeymoon," she said, and she smiled into the surgeon's face, "so bright that even sea-sickness couldn't dim it. You know, it has lasted eight years."

The surgeon smiled, and the strange man passed on.

Someone took her hand, and they descended the gangway together.

"For God's sake," he said, "tell me what it means!"

"It means," she answered, "that I am on your side forever."

His hand closed over the one he held. "I ought to send you back," he said, "but I cannot."

"You cannot," she repeated resolutely.

Then her voice softened. "God bless that detective!" she added fervently.—Mary Lucas in Ideas.

MONEY BURDENS.

The Sons of Prominent Financiers in Training for Future Work.

Great fortunes in the United States will have in most cases trained guardians when the men who have made the fortunes or are now in control of them have passed away. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has to a large extent relieved his father of business burdens. George F. Baker, Jr., has taken much responsibility from his father's shoulders. Ogden Mills, the son of D. O. Mills, has shouldered his father's responsibilities in eight railroad and steamship lines. John D. Rockefeller has turned over a large part of his interests to his son, as have James Stillman, William Rockefeller, James J. Hill, Jacob Schiff and J. Pierpont Morgan. Averill Harriman is learning the railroad business from the bottom up. Kingdon Gould, the heir presumptive of the George Gould millions, is learning the practical side of mining in Colorado. August Belmont, Jr., is taking practical lessons as a clerk in the severely respectable and conservative banking office of August Belmont & Co. Walter Hill, the youngest son of James J. Hill, is learning the railroad business, beginning at the bottom. Young H. H. Rogers has already assumed his father's burden. William Rockefeller will leave behind him William G. Rockefeller and Percy A. Rockefeller, who will divide the place he has left vacant. John D. Archbold will some day step aside for John F. Archbold. Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., will be equal to the responsibilities which will eventually devolve upon him. Watson Webb, son of Dr. Seward Webb, is a clerk in the office of the assistant superintendent of the Northwestern Road in Milwaukee. Gaspard Bacon, son of Robert Bacon, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., and one of the biggest stockholders in the Northern Pacific Railroad, is learning the railroad business in the West. Augustus Barstow succeeds Frank Q. Barstow, who died a few weeks ago. H. H. Rogers, Jr., is "making good" under the tremendous responsibilities that were suddenly thrust upon him. J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., has taken over a great share of the financial responsibilities of his father, and in time will be the head of the house of Morgan & Company. Mortimer L. Schiff is being trained to assume the responsibilities of his father, Jacob Schiff, one of the biggest money powers in the country of the day. Allan A. Ryan and Clendenin J. Ryan, sons of Thomas F. Ryan, are fitting themselves to take up their father's work by learning the methods of Wall street.

Mountain Climbers Escape.

Plunging headlong from the rocky side of a mountain in the Olympic range, near Lake Cushman, a distance of fully 500 feet, and yet escaping without a broken bone, is the experience that befell Ferd Baker, says the Aberdeen correspondence of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

In company with several others from this city Mr. Baker climbed the mountain yesterday. About 4 o'clock the party started downward and had taken but a few steps when Baker lost his footing and plunged over a precipice. How far he fell he does not know, but he was rendered unconscious by the fall, and in this condition his body rolled down the mountain until finally caught by a bunch of shrubs.

There he lay until found by W. J. Patterson, one of the party. With the application of snow and ice Baker was revived and after a time walked to camp, where his wounds were attended to. He was frightfully bruised about the body and face and suffered much pain. He was made as comfortable as possible and at daybreak this morning the start for the city was made in an automobile. The party reached there about 4 o'clock, and Baker's injuries were attended to by a physician.

Smiles & The Day

Worldly Analysis.

"Do you think I ought to consider wealth in selecting a husband?" said the confiding girl.

"It depends," answered Miss Cayenne, "on whether you are looking forward to a happy home or to a divorce that will pay dividends."

An Indication of Leisure.

"Do you think a four-leaf clover is a sign of luck?"

"Yep," answered Farmer Cornstossel. "There ain't no doubt in my mind but what anybody with time to fool away lookin' for four-leaf clovers is purty lucky."

Very Rude.

"Since we're living in the country, I take long walks for my complexion, dear."

"Yes. That's the worst of living in the country—the chemist's shop is always such a long walk."—Sydney Bulletin.

The Mighty Pen.

"I would lay down my life for you," wrote the poet to the ideal of his wildly beating heart, to which she replied:

"I won't ask you to do that; if you will lay down your pen I shall be satisfied."—Houston Post.

The Beneficiary.

Little Clarence—No, I honestly don't believe it does me a bit of good when you thrash me.

Mr. Callipers—I begin to suspect as much, my son, but you have no idea how much good it sometimes does me to thrash you.—Puck.

A POLITICAL ARRANGEMENT.

District Visitor—Good morning, Mrs. Perkins. I hope you are coming to the Unionist Association garden party at Sir Archibald's this afternoon, to hear our candidate speak?

Mrs. Perkins—Well, no; you see, mum, my neighbor, Mrs. 'Opkins, she belongs to that, so I joined the Liberal Government, so we can look after one another's babies while t'other's at meetings.—London Punch.

The Bad Man Explains.

"Takes four men to handle me when I git started."

"I saw one man handle ye yesterday over on the next ranch."

"Well, they happened to be short-handed over there."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Reasonable.

"Why do you always go out on the balcony when I begin to sing, John? Can't you bear to listen to me?"

"It isn't that, but I don't want the neighbors to think I'm a wife beater."—Illustrated Bits.

Why He Returned.

(Owner to a man who has hired a horse and returned soon after)—Have you forgotten something?

"No; but I think the horse must have."—Fligende Blaetter.

Cognomen Suits Him.

Figg—That chap I notice you going into the club with so often is one of the best dressed men in town. What is his name?

Fogg—Owen Taylor, and he lives up to it.—Boston Transcript.

Not Much Choice.

"I want a haircut," said the middle-aged man as he dropped into a barber's chair.

"Yes, sir," was the answer. "Which one?"—Tit-Bits.

Well Answered.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is a hypocrite?

Pa—A hypocrite, my son, is a man who publicly thanks Providence for his success, then gets mad every time anybody insinuates that he isn't mainly responsible for it himself.—Tit-Bits.

Stinus One.

Tommy Tuff seemed particularly obtuse that morning, but "dear teacher" was determined to make him understand.

"You say you own a dog, Tommy?" she said. "Then you have a quadruped, don't you see?"

"No'm," replied Tommy.

"But I explained to you a moment ago that any animal with four legs was a quadruped."

"Yes'm, but Buster lost one o' his'n fightin' a trolley car."—Catholic Standard and Times.

One Bet He Overlooked.

"My son won high honors at college."

"Football or baseball?"

"Neither; he didn't go in for sports?"

"I thought you said he won honors."

"In his studies."

"Oh, that's right; I suppose one can win honors in them, too."—Kansas City Times.

Impractical.

"She is very liberal in her charities," said one woman.

"Yes," answered the other, "liberal, but not always practical. For instance, she wanted to send a load of alarm clocks to Africa to aid sufferers from the sleeping sickness."—Washington Star.

Smooth Waters.

The Boy—Have yer caught anything, zur?

The Angler—No, not yet, my lad.

The Boy—Ah, I thought not. There weren't no water in that pond till it rained last night.—The Sketch.

Real Work.

Mrs. Bacon—I understand your husband is at work on a new poem?

Mrs. Egbert—He is. He's trying to get some magazine to accept it.—Yonkers Statesman.

"NOBLESSE OBLIGE."

Warm-Hearted Girl Trying to Live Up to Her Class Motto.

Her sleeves rolled elbow-high, Agatha Ware stood in the pantry beating a mayonnaise with the careful energy that she gave to everything she did. "One, two, three," she was counting slowly as she dropped in the oil and whisked the mixture with a silver fork.

"Gracious!" said an amused voice from the doorway. "This must be a wonderful dinner-party you're giving, Agatha, when you won't trust the salad-dressing to Katie."

"It is," answered Miss Ware, briefly. "But don't talk until I get it done; there's a dear."

In a few minutes the mayonnaise was whipped to light perfection, and Agatha emerged, buttoning her cuffs. "Now come into the dining-room while I arrange the flowers. Then we can talk," she said, leading the way into a wide, white wainscoted room where everything seemed cool beauty and order.

"Violets!" exclaimed Beatrice Maynard, sniffing rapturously at a half-opened box. "Princess violets at this time of the year! Agatha, you extravagant creature! Who's coming? It can't be the big grown-ups, because your father and mother are away; and it can't be the small grown-ups, because you haven't asked me, your own little playmate. Now who is it?"

Agatha paused a moment over a rebellious handful of blossoms; then she said:

"It's Jennie Morrison from the Mill Road."

"What? The little lame thing that raises roses, and goes about selling them with eggs and blackberries and 'garden-truck'? All this fuss about her?" questioned Beatrice.

"Yes, 'all this fuss about her,'" repeated Agatha, firmly. "If I wanted to be sentimental I could rhapsodize and say that 'Jennie has a soul.' Well, she has, and a mind, and a little lame body, and I'm going to minister to all three to-night if I can."

"What are you going to wear?" demanded the practical Beatrice, dropping from ethical clouds.

"My lavender chiffon," answered Agatha. "Just what I would wear if you and all the rest of the girls were coming. She shall have everything you would have had. I've been lending her my books, and she said to me the other day, so pathetically, 'O Miss Ware, how nice it must seem to be rested at the table like book-people, and to have time to talk and flowers and—things!' Why," added Agatha, laughing a little, "we're even going to have black coffee, because 'book-people' have that after dinner, you know."

"Well," commented Beatrice, rising, "all I can say is that you're silly and extravagant all for nothing."

Agatha flushed and began a quick reply, then she checked herself.

"Beatrice, did you never think what our class motto, 'Noblesse Oblige,' really means? It's a favorite maxim of mine, though I nearly always fall short of it. But don't try to tease me out of really reaching the heights this time. The knowledge that these things are mine, constantly in my life, should make me want Jennie to share them once."

"But she'll never notice them!" Beatrice went on with her argument, all unheeding. "That sort of person is so stupid. And even if she does, she'll just think you're stuck-up and a snob and trying to 'rub it in.'"

"Jennie won't," said Agatha, smiling quietly. "I'm sure of Jennie."

Late that night a little lame girl lay in her bed, too happy to sleep, for all her room seemed fragrant with gentle courtesy and the breath of violets.

"Why," she murmured to herself, "why, Miss Ware treated me just as if we were friends!"—Youth's Companion.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — Mrs. EMMA L. MISE, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

CURED ITCHING HUMOR.

Big, Painful Swellings Broke and Did Not Heal—Suffered Three Years—Tortures Yield to Cuticura.
"Little black swellings were scattered over my face and neck and they would leave little black scars that would itch so I couldn't keep from scratching them. Larger swellings would appear and my clothes would stick to the sores. I went to a doctor, but the trouble only got worse. By this time it was all over my arms and the upper part of my body in swellings as large as a dollar. It was so painful that I could not bear to lie on my back. The second doctor stopped the swellings, but when they broke the places would not heal. I bought a set of the Cuticura Remedies and in less than a week some of the places were nearly well. I continued until I had used three sets, and now I am sound and well. The disease lasted three years. O. L. Wilson, Puryear, Tenn., Feb. 8, 1908."

A Verbal Speedometer.

Every calling has its technical vocabulary, and those who are familiar with it are often surprised and irritated at the difficulty other people have in understanding it. A writer in the New York World tells of an old horseman down in Maine who had run over a man, and was being sued for damages.

The court asked the defendant if he was driving fast. He answered: "I was going a pace." The court then said: "Now, kindly tell the gentlemen of the jury just how fast you were going."

"Well," said the defendant, "I reckon I was going a clip."

"Well, will you tell the jury how fast a clip is?"

"Well, it's going a dote."

"Now, will you tell the jury how fast a dote is?"

"Well, a dote's a dote. Anybody knows what a dote is."

VALUABLE HOME RECIPE

Will Break Up Severe Cold in a Day and Cure Any Curable Cough.

Mix one-half ounce of Concentrated pine compound with two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whiskey. Shake thoroughly each time and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours.

This formula is given out by a noted medical authority whose remarkable cures are well known to the profession. Local druggists say this mixture will work wonders for the treatment of all throat and lung diseases. Any druggist has these ingredients or will get them for you from his wholesale house.

The Concentrated pine comes only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in an airtight case, but be sure to get only that labeled "Concentrated."

Headquarters for the Juice.

Once upon a time a child who was asked upon an examination paper to define a mountain range replied, "A large sized cook stove." The same method of reasoning seems to go with older growth. A recent examination paper at the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale contained the question, "What is the office of the gastric juice?" And the answer on one paper said, "The stomach."—Cleveland Leader.

There is a belief prevalent among the natives of Asia Minor that the thicker the clothing worn at all seasons of the year, the better it is for the human body, protecting it alike from the winter cold and the summer heat. In Caucasasia it is not uncommon to see people wearing huge bearskin coats in the midst of summer, with the thermometer standing at 100 degrees.

A tourist returning to the east on a transcontinental line, while passing through a forlorn-looking town in the desert heard two men conversing as the train stopped for water. "Good-by, Bill," said one. "I am leaving this burg with just one pair of pants, and not another thing on earth." "You are lucky, old pal," replied Bill; "that's more than anybody else ever took away from here."

Senator Dolliver in a recent campaign told this story to illustrate the logic of an opponent: Did you ever hear about the young woman in Fort Dodge? One spring morning she sat on the piazza of her pretty little home sewing a button on her husband's coat. The husband himself appeared and she said, fretfully: "It's a perfect shame the careless way the tailor sewed this button on. This is the fifth time I've had to sew it on again for you."

The high rates at which medicines and drugs are sold by the private pharmacies and drug stores of St. Petersburg have induced the municipal authorities to start a municipal pharmacy, for which purpose $15,450 has been recently allowed. The city pharmacy will supply medicines and drugs to all the disinfection and sanitary departments, as well as municipal hospitals. To private persons drugs will be sold at 20 per cent discount against the normal charges.

The American consul-general at Liverpool shows that during the six months ending June 30 of the present year, 272,124 tons of salt were shipped from the Mersey, of which 190,505 tons were billed from Liverpool. Much of this was to fill orders from the United States. Increased quantities went to British North America, the West Indies, Central and South America, Africa, Asia and on the continent of Europe. There were lessened demands from Australasia and ports in the United Kingdom.

In spite of the reputation for latitudinarianism he gained from his early trial for heresy, the late Professor Jowett, of Oxford, was intolerant of pretentiousness and shallow conceit. One self-satisfied undergraduate met the master one day. "Master," he said, "I have searched everywhere in all philosophies, ancient and modern, and nowhere do I find the evidence of God." "Mr. —," replied the master, after a shorter pause than usual, "if you don't find a God by 5 o'clock this afternoon you must leave this college."

The public service commission of the State of New York has declined to compel the adoption of electricity by the railroads passing through the Adirondack country as a means of preventing the destruction of forests by fire. The proposal was rejected because of the prohibitive cost of the operation of electric roads even though most of the power were obtained from waterfalls. It would mean an expenditure of much more than a million dollars a year above the present cost of steam operation for the railroads of the State of New York.

By the introduction of improved machinery it is claimed that Great Britain is now in a position to build vessels cheaper than ever before. A London journal says the steamers of from six thousand to eight thousand tons can now be built at £5 5s per ton of their deadweight carrying capacity. If this is so, then the cost price is lower than we ever remember it to have been, save one short period some years ago, when a few steamers were built (though probably without profit to the builders) at £5 per ton deadweight. Reduced to its equivalent in United States money, the price of £5 5s above stated means that six thousand to eight thousand-ton steamships can now be built for $153,000 to $204,000.—Philadelphia Record.

An aching back is instantly relieved by an application of Sloan's Liniment.

This liniment takes the place of massage and is better than sticky plasters. It penetrates—without rubbing—through the skin and muscular tissue right to the bone, quickens the blood, relieves congestion, and gives permanent as well as temporary relief.

Here's the Proof.
Mr. JAMES C. LEE, of 1100 9th St., N.E., Washington, D.C., writes: "Thirty years ago I fell from a scaffold and seriously injured my back. I suffered terribly from rheumatism, and the small of my back all around my stomach was just as if I had been beaten with a club. I used every plaster I could get with no relief. Sloan's Liniment took the pain right out, and I can now do as much ladder work as any man in the shop, thanks to Sloan's Liniment."

Sloan's Liniment

Mr. J. P. EVANS, of Mt. Airy, Ga., says: "After being afflicted for three years with rheumatism, I used Sloan's Liniment, and was cured sound and well, and am glad to say I haven't been troubled with rheumatism since. My leg was badly swollen from my hip to my knee. One-half a bottle took the pain and swelling out."

Sloan's Liniment has no equal as a remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints. Prices, 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

Man, the New Creator.

What is Man?

There is a word of prophecy concerning him. If Niagara suggests the old gods, surly and mean to usward, steel-making utterly contents them, is the opinion of Eugene Wood in an article on steel-making in Success Magazine. Thor with his hammer, Jove with his thunderbolts, Hercules with the original Big Stick—they couldn't hold their job at steel-making. "Go to the office and get your time," would be what the "pusher" would tell them. The only mythic figure that the steel industry suggests is that bold and resolute, that unconquered and unconquerable spirit, whom Milton's reluctant pen was "forced to make the hero of 'Paradise Lost.'" The flame, the fervent heat, the rolling smoke remind us of him. But none of all the mighty works that are done therein recall that prophecy of his (if Eden's serpent be the all-trope of Lucifer): "Ye shall be as gods"—and more also.

What is Man? The New Creator.

Probably Insane.

"Winkley is a good deal of a crank, isn't he?"

"That doesn't half describe him. He's going around now insisting that if the postoffice department has to be made self-sustaining the war and navy departments ought to be run the same way."

Pockets.
"Women's clothes," remarked Mr. Eames, as he watched his wife pin on her hat, "are extraordinary vestments." He paused after having pronounced that unusual word, and continued to watch his wife thrust the long steel wire here and there, in the endeavor to find the hole it belonged in. Presently she succeeded, and turning on him said, "What did you say, dear?"

Mr. Eames repeated his remark emphatically, inquiring finally if she were ready to go.

"I am sorry to be so late," she apologized, as they went down stairs, "but I was doing some cleaning to-day that couldn't be put off. I had a dress that had to be done up in moth balls, and one of my hats was in need of a new ribbon, and then—"

Mr. Eames groined, to show that he still thought that woman's vestments were extraordinary.

"And then I cleaned the pockets of three of your suits, dear. There were wads and wads of dust in them. I counted fifteen pockets in each suit—no, there were sixteen in one—and three times fifteen makes forty-five, and one added is forty-six. I turned each pocket inside out, and brushed the crease in the lining. You men have such complicated clothes, dear. Why, I never had more than three—" "All clothes," remarked Mr. Eames, "are foolish. Let us drop the subject."

Construction of Language.

An absurdly worded statement of a fact which was not in itself remarkable recently tried the gravity of the listeners. It was on the occasion of the funeral of an elderly woman in a New England town. She had left an old mother, nearly 90 years of age, and an only son who was well on toward 50.

The services were conducted by a timid young clergyman, recently settled over the parish. After praying for many and various things, he said: "And two, we especially pray that the Lord will comfort and sustain in their loss and sorrow. One is the orphan, who, although no longer young, is an orphan still, and must so continue; the other is the mother, far advanced in years, who has survived her daughter, although considerably her senior."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system.

THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of known composition. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

BIG TIME NEXT WEEKState Y. M. C. A. Convention to Break Record.Kokomo, Ind., Nov. 13.—The Young Men's Christian association's state convention, to be held in Kokomo next week, will mark a double anniversary—the fortieth year of organized state work and the twentieth of the present administration of E. E.
Stacy, state secretary. The state committee, of which John C. Haswell of Marion is chairman, is completing its report to the convention, which will show remarkable progress during the last twenty years. Since 1889 the membership in the associations of the state has grown from 4,000 to nearly 15,000; the value of buildings and real estate from $200,000 to nearly a million and a quarter; current expenses from $33,000 to $180,000 annually; the daily attendance at buildings from 1,200 to 6,000.The money having been subscribed, it is expected that by the time the convention meets a new movement in the state work will be consummated in the election of a state boys' work secretary, who will give his entire time to the development of boys' work among the associations and in similar institutions. This is in line with the tendency of the association movement in increasing the emphasis upon the boy.Preparations are being completed for the reception of the visitors. Kokomo, being but a few miles from the geographical center of the association of the state, a record-breaking attendance is expected. Sharon E. Jones, president of the Richmond association,
is president of the state association, and W. B. Schaefer of South Bend, principal secretary. George B. Lockwood of Marion and Henry B. Overesch of Lafayette have recently been appointed chairmen of the business and credentials committees respectively.

COOLED DOWN

State Guardsmen's Presence Calms the Excitable People of Cairo.Cairo, Ill., Nov. 13.—The arrival of five companies of the state militia apparently cooled the spirit of the men who lynched Will James, a negro, and Henry Salzman Thursday night. No further attempt was made to storm
the county jail where Arthur Alexander, a negro, implicated by James in his confession in the killing of Miss Anna Pelley, is held. Many citizens, while condemning the action of the mob, are satisfied with the night's work. Mayor Parsons said he did not anticipate any further trouble.

Murder Trial in Progress.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 13.—Charged with the murder of Mrs. Vinnie Scott last July, Charles Earhart, a rag picker, having a family living in Illinois, is on trial in this city. The body of the Scott woman was found along the Vandalia tracks west of Terre Haute
a short distance from where Earhart lay in an unconscious condition. Earhart claims he and the woman were assaulted by unidentified men.

Fairbanks—How Boys Patched Up

Quarrel Over a Girl.

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 13.—A nephew
of former Vice President Fairbanks, William De Forrest Fairbanks, a student in Milliken university, engaged in a mock pistol duel with Edgar Stevens, another student, whose parents live in Alton, over the hand of a high school girl. That the affair was a fake was not known to the seconds and the city was stirred at the report of a fatal combat.Fairbanks and Stevens became estranged in an argument over calling on the young woman. They appointed seconds who arranged they should meet in Fairview park at sundown and fire from twenty paces.In the meantime the prospect of becoming punctured by a bullet wasn't enticing and the principals met, amicably settled their differences and decided to stage a sham duel in place of that first decided. Their seconds resorted to every means to prevent the expected bloodshed. With tears in their eyes they watched their mutual friends shoot at each other. The principles fired in the air. When they recovered from their amazement the seconds saw their friends standing arm
in arm singing, "Every Day Is Ladies' Day with Me."The news of the duel had spread into the city and exciting rumors were everywhere until the affray was explained.

HIS BARN WAS BURNED

And Road Supervisor Lays It on to Men Who Didn't Want to Work.Owenton, Ky., Nov. 13.—Eight indictments have been returned against prominent Owen county farmers for the burning of the barn of County Road Supervisor Nelson Cunningham.
All were released on $2,000 bond.
Cunningham sent out recently notices to all men over twenty-one in his district to appear for work on the county roads, as is required by the state law.
Repeatedly warned that his barn would be burned if he attempted to enforce the law, he continued sending the notices. His correspondents made good;
the barn was burned a few nights ago,
and the next day almost every man in the county appeared for work. The wrathful supervisor then went before the grand jury.

THE GROWTH OF GARY

Location of Four Large Industries Swells Population 20,000.Gary, Ind., Nov. 13.—Four new industries located in Lake county in the last few days will give employment to a total of 8,000 men when the plants are constructed and increase the population of the county at least 20,000.
Work has already been started on three of the new industries.Two of these concerns have purchased sites, at least the McClintick-Marshall Construction company, and a department of the Cudahy Packing company, and two others will come to Gary, these being the American Bridge company's western plant and another factory of the Universal Cement company, which will be the same size as the Buflington works in this city.

Stabbed His Son-in-Law.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 13.—William
Barr stabbed his son-in-law, Alonzo Geer, to death, following a quarrel between Geer and Mrs. Geer in a saloon. The woman asked her husband to leave the place and he is alleged to have struck her, when Barr plunged a knife into his neck. Barr escaped.

Caught Between Cars.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 13.—James M.
Dent, aged forty-one years, assistant chief engineer at the central power house of the Indiana Union Traction company, was instantly killed when he fell between an interurban car and a trailer on the Indiana Union traction line.

Thought He Saw a Rabbit.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 13.—While Clarence Wade and his father, Philip Wade, were hunting together, Clarence thought he saw a rabbit in the bushes and let fly with both barrels, with the result that he brought down
the elder Wade, the shot entering his legs.

AGAINST BLACK HANDPennsylvania Troopers Make a Good Catch.Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 13.—Ten men and one woman, alleged to comprise a Black Hand gang which has terrorized people in Hazleton and vicinity for some time, were captured by troopers of the state constabulary in Hazleton and nearby towns, brought to this city and held under bail at a hearing before Alderman Brown. It is charged that some of them are implicated in an effort made in New York city last week to murder Constable Raphael De Angelo, who has been engaged for some time in working up cases against them. With the prisoners the state troopers captured a number of stilo-ettes, cartridges, disguises, nitro-glycerine and also some literature which the authorities claim is evidence of the organization's existence and the conspiracies which have taken place. Postal authorities are also interested in the case, having in their possession letters which the members of the gang are alleged to have sent through the mail.

ten several letters to C. L. English, a banker, demanding a sum of money
under penalty of death, has been released from jail on a bond signed by thirty prominent business men of the city. Several of his bondsmen offered the young man employment, but Johnson said he preferred to take up his studies at the high school. He has entered school again.

The Steinhil Case.
